Same Oaths, But Different Fates

The temper of the times is such that Congress now is expected to repeal the loyalty affidavit requirement for college students in the federal student-loan program. Only ten years ago civil liberties watchdogs considered it a victory of a sort to have Congress accept an identically worded disclaimer as a requirement for graduate science students seeking federal

The old oath requirement was written into the act setting up the National Science Foundation in 1950. It looked at that time like a reasonable compromise to the original language of the bill calling for FBI approval of fellowship applicants.

A repealer bill sponsored by Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) would eliminate the latest disclaimer affidavit embodied in the National Defense Education Act of 1958. A student seeking a loan must swear he does not believe in or belong to any organization that teaches illegal overthrow of the government.

Kennedy's bill was shelved by a 49-42 vote last summer after brief Senate debate. He hopes to find more support this year because his new measure retains an affirmative oath of allegiance while eliminating the more objectionable negative affidavit. More than a score of colleges and universities have refused to accept Education Act funds because of this require-

Way back in 1950 or 1951, I encountered H. L. Hunt who is reputed to be one of the richest men in the world. I have known several richest men in the world but have never counted their money. Hunt certainly come out "secondwanted to save mankind from Communism which was best." and he cited the fact that a laudable purpose. "While I was visiting with Mr. Hunt of Dallas this winter, he asked me one day if I knew what role you had played in the Russian Revolution. I replied that I was quite a student of the period, and, as a matter of fact, I was writing a book about it, but that I had not known of any particular role that you had played. He then said that when you had been down to see him, you had given him the impression that you, Lenin and Trotsky were the three men who planned the October seizure of power.

"I was rather surprised to hear this, as your name does not figure in any book I have ever consulted on can-you might do it with great this period, and I showed Mr. Hunt, in his copy of 'Stalin,' by Trotsky, that your name did not appear in it, although Trotsky discusses the October Revolution at some length. I told him that the first time most-well, in very greater temyour name appears in my files is a clipping from the Zionist Bulletin, recounting the fact that you had addressed a Zionist group in Shanghai.

I must be the fellow who made the moon! For less than Hunt says, they put fellows in the boobyhatch. "No, you're not Napoleon, I am!"

Any student of the first year of the Russian Revolution would know such names as Bukharin, Zinoviev, Kollontai, Chernov, Tseretelli, even Stalin, But they would not find the name of the 24 year old genius, Sokolsky, among them. Forsooth! He was a mere gatherer of news on a small newspaper published in English in the city of Petrograd where he went to from the School of Journalism of Columbia University, in his native State of New York.

The "Russian Daily News" was owned by H. Custus Vezey, an American, but it was under the many illnesses tend to improve control of the British Military Mission and was definitely anti-Bolshevik throughout its career, until it is indispensable for those who

One of the advantages of having seen the Bolshevik Revolution close at hand, as a reporter who daily had to visit the various bureaus of the Smolny Institute, is that one recognizes the nature of revolution. It is never an accident. It is never without cause. It never requires much organization in advance because it only happens when the core of a nation is rotted. Had the Bolsheviks not taken power in Soviet Russia, some other group would have. Other groups tried and failed to hold power. The Court party under Grand Duke Nicholai Nicholaievitch tried; the conservative middle class under Prince Lvov tried: the patriotic nationalistic Social Revolutionists under Kerensky tried and failed; the Army under General

Why did Lenin and Trotsky, representing the smallest and least important political group, succeed? The answer is so simple that it is too often overlooked. They had carefully analyzed the inner yearning of the Russian peasants and workers and even large elements of the middle class who were weary of war, hunger, struggle over land and the wastefulness of the upper classes.

Kornilov tried and failed.

As a reporter and editor, I witnessed the deeds of the day. In the Smolny Institute, in the Constituent Assembly, wherever I had to go for a sight of the events and to listen to interminable speeches, I went.

Ike's First Trip To Cape Canaveral Was Considered As Long Overdue

WASHINGTON - The President's quick trip to inspect the vital Cape Canaveral missile launching base for the first time during seven years in the White House coincided with two other important developments, one well publicized, the other not. No. 1 is the debate in Congress raging around the question of whether the USA has become a second-class power.

No. 2 is a quiet probe of Cape Canaveral by the House Space Committee, centering on the disastrous number of missile failures and the reasons why.

Up until last week, President Eisenhower had not, during two terms in the White House, visited this key military establishment. So, with his missile policy under serious attack, it was decided that a trip was wise if not man-

Press Secretary Hagerty announced that the President hitherto had not been able to visit Cape Canaveral. During the past 12 months, however, Ike has flown four times to Augusta, Ga., just a short hop from the cape, twice has gone quail shooting with National Steel chairman George Humphrey and Cities Service chairman W. The President was here answering a broad question about being "second-best" on trips to the moon, the number of missiles, the training of engineers and economic growth. The old oath requirement was written into the act setting up the National Science Foundation in 1950. It looked at that time like a reasonable compromise to the original language of the bill calling for FBI approval of fellowship

A repealer bill sponsored by Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) would eliminate the latest disclaimer affidavit embodied in the National Defense Education Act of 1958. A student seeking a loan must swear he does not believe in or belong to any organization that teaches illegal overthrow of the government.

Kennedy's bill was shelved by a 49-42 vote last summer after brief Senate debate. He hopes to find more support this year because his new measure retains an affirmative oath of allegiance while eliminating the more objectionable negative affidavit. More than a score of colleges and universities have refused to accept Education Act funds because of this require-

The National Science Foundation, meanwhile, reports receiving few objections to its affidavit demands, signed to date by 12,000 students, although there is no way to judge how many students simply refuse to file applications for fellowship: because of the requirement. On the other hand, it could be argued that loyalty oaths are more offensive to educators than to those being educated.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

It Was Some Other Guy

Way back in 1950 or 1951, I encountered H. L. Hunt who is reputed to be one of the richest men in the world. I have known several richest men in the world but have never counted their money. Hunt wanted to save mankind from Communism which was a laudable purpose. When last I saw him, it was at Chicago, in 1952, where he tried to nominate General Douglas MacArthur for President. It was at the Re- as the Soviets did. The President publican Convention that Hunt discovered that his money could not buy anything or anyone.

Now along comes E. Mullins, who writes on the stationery of the Institute for Biopolitics, and who recounts the following:

"While I was visiting with Mr. Hunt of Dallas this winter, he asked me one day if I knew what role you had played in the Russian Revolution. I replied that I was quite a student of the period, and, as a matter of fact, I was writing a book about it, but that I had not known of any particular role that you had played. He then said that when you had been down to see him, you had given him the impression that you, Lenin and Trotsky were the three men who planned the October seizure of power.

"I was rather surprised to hear this, as your name regiment it, why, for a while you does not figure in any book I have ever consulted on this period, and I showed Mr. Hunt, in his copy of 'Stalin,' by Trotsky, that your name did not appear in it, although Trotsky discusses the October Revolution at some length. I told him that the first time your name appears in my files is a clipping from po than we now are doing it. the Zionist Bulletin, recounting the fact that you had addressed a Zionist group in Shanghai.

I must be the fellow who made the moon! For less than Hunt says, they put fellows in the boobyhatch. "No, you're not Napoleon, I am!"

Any student of the first year of the Russian Revolution would know such names as Bukharin, Zinoviev, Kollontai, Chernov, Tseretelli, even Stalin. But they would not find the name of the 24 year old genius. Sokolsky, among them. Forsooth! He was a mere gatherer of news on a small newspaper published in English in the city of Petrograd where he went to from the School of Journalism of Columbia University, in his native State of New York.

The "Russian Daily News" was owned by H. Custus Vezey, an American, but it was under the control of the British Military Mission and was definitely anti-Bolshevik throughout its career, until it was seized by them.

I, along with many others, was, without much ado, put on a train leaving Petrograd. On this train were abling. One form of treatmentalso the American. Chinese and Japanese diplomatic surgery - may be needed in line delegations as well as some businessmen of these

One of the advantages of having seen the Bolshevik Revolution close at hand, as a reporter who daily had to visit the various bureaus of the Smolny Institute, is that one recognizes the nature of revolution. It is never an accident. It is never without cause. It never requires much organization in advance because it only happens when the core of a nation is rotted. Had the Bolsheviks not taken power in Soviet Russia, some other group would have. Other groups tried and failed to hold power. The Court party under Grand Duke Nicholai Nicholaievitch tried; the conservative middle class under Prince Lvov tried: the patriotic nationalistic Social Revolutionists under Kerensky tried and failed; the Army under General Kornilov tried and failed.

Why did Lenin and Trotsky, representing the smallest and least important political group, succeed? The answer is so simple that it is too often overlooked. They had carefully analyzed the inner yearning of the Russian peasants and workers and even large elements of the middle class who were weary of war, hunger, struggle over land and the wastefulness of the upper classes.

As a reporter and editor, I witnessed the deeds of the day. In the Smolny Institute, in the Constituent Assembly, wherever I had to go for a sight of the events and to listen to interminable speeches. I went. No, despite H. L. Hunt, I was not the third man in the Lenin-Trotsky team - nor was I Napoleon or lius Caesar or even Hitler. It must have been two

"It's Your Turn To Milk The Cows"

Ike's First Trip To Cape Canaveral Was Considered As Long Overdue

dent's quick trip to inspect the vital Cape Canaveral missile launching base for the first time during seven years in the White House coincided with two other important developments, one well publicized, the other not.

No. 1 is the debate in Congress raging around the question of whether the USA has become a second-class power.

No. 2 is a quiet probe of Cape Canaveral by the House Space Committee, centering on the dis astrous number of missile failures and the reasons why.

Up until last week, President Eisenhower had not, during two terms in the White House, visited this key military establishment. So, with his missile policy under serious attack, it was decided that a trip was wise if not man-

Press Secretary Hagerty announced that the President hitherto had not been able to visit Cape Canaveral. During the past 12 months, however, Ike has flown four times to Augusta, Ga., just a short hop from the cape twice has gone quail shooting George Humphrey and Cities Service chairman W. Alton Jones, also in Georgia and also near the cape; while twice he was flown all the way to Palm Springs, Calif., for sojourns with Republic Steel director George Allen.

With Congerssional debate on missiles so intense, therefore, it the President to spare three hours at the No. 1 base where missiles are launched. Past Mismanagement

During his three-hour tour the President didn't get much chance for profound investigation. But here are some of the factors which have contributed to our missile lag which agents for the House Space Committee are

1. Manpower turnover at Cape Canaveral has been 50 per cent. This costs the taxpayers $4,000, 000 a year.

2. The hiring of additional personnel has contributed to greater inefficiency. According to a confidential memo by Col. Paul Cooper to his superior, Maj. Gen. Donald Yates: "Increase in personnel adds to the inefficiency by increasing the number of planners with an attendant increase in the variety of philosophies of planning.... In other words, the Air Force spends more money to buy great inefficiency.

3. One Pán American techni cian lost a $2,000,000 missile by with National Steel chairman carelessly crossing the wrong wires of the Dovap system. The big 1,200-mile Thor was headed for Orlando, Fla., instead of the mid-Atlantic, when the safety officer frantically pushed the "destroy" button.

4. There has been lack of planning and coordination. Colonel Cooper once wrote General was considered wise policy for Yates: "Within the past two years it has become increasingly apparent that planning for range expansion and the implementation of this planning are accomplished in a random fashion. This random planning has led to con-

Politics vs. Defense

Most significant but little realized fact about Cape Canaveral is that it was turned over to Pan American Airways for operation just as the Air Force was doing a good job. This occurred shortly after Eisenhower was first elected President, under circumstances which Congressmen want was operated jointly by all the services. In 1950 it was given to the Air Force. The Air Force. operating between 1950 and 1953, had got the cape onto an efficient basis when Secretary of the Air Force Harold Talbott leased it to Pan American. Sam Pryor, executive vice president of Pan American, has been both a consistent money raiser for the GOP and a generous political contributor on behalf of airline officials. Talbott, in turn, was one of the top money raisers for the Republican party. Both followed that timehonored tradition-to the victors belong the spoils.

After he became Secretary of the Air Force, Talbott did not hesitate to follow that tradition. He swung various defense contracts to those who had been generous to the GOP. He canceled a military plane contract with Kaiser industries in favor of his old friend Grover Loening of Fairchild Aircraft. He tried to cancel an aluminum extrusion press contract with Kaiser Aluminum at Halethorpe, Md. And he suddenly switched an Air Force heating contract to an inexperienced company organized by the brother of Gov. Caleb Boggs of Delaware.

And in late 1953 Talbott authorized the transfer of Cape Cana. veral from Air Force to Pan American operation. Afterward, Assistant Secretary of the Air Force Roger Lewis, who had ok'd the transfer, resigned from the Air Force and took a job with Pan Am-in charge of Cape Canaveral. Starting salary: $28,000 plus a juicy option on 15,000 shares of Pan Am stock at the market value on Dec. 6, 1955, thus enabling him to pay a favorable capital

Pan Am has improved its operation of Cape Canaveral in the last two years. Morale is better, management improved, and there is a better supply system. But the disastrous period after the Pan Am takeover in 1953 must go down as one reason why the missile gap between the USA and the USSR has tragically widened.

The twin girls are all over the house at the age of 18 months. They are pretty, with blue eyes and champagne-colored hair. Pamela is 2 pounds heavier than Robin, although they are identical. Pam is the leader; she gets into trouble with her initiative. When her mother told her to stop playing with a half full ashtray, she didn't. Her hand was given a whack and she glowered and walked off to the hall closet, where she stooped and bit the hose on the vacuum cleaner.

Robin is the laugher. Everything to her is fun, even watching her sister being loved by a grownup. Still, she gets into trouble too. One day her mother came into the living room in a moment of quiet, and found Robbie digging the dirt out of a plant with a spoon and feeding it to her 6-months-old brother Jim. The little fellow was chewing happily.

Now Virginia Lee looks forward to the fourth child in two years. The father, a big redhead who grins behind glasses, just shakes his head: "It could be the fourth and fifth," he says.

The roast beef was good. So was the homemade orange cake. I don't know how Ginny does it, but she manages to cook, to bake, to clean, to do her laundry, take care of her gorgeous orphanage and one undemanding husband without being overcome by anything more than 9 p.m. ex-

Around 9 p.m., my good friend Chief was reading a newspaper and nodding over it. Gayle was studying the clock and wondering what time Frankie had promised to phone her at home. I was too well fed and too lazy to move, but I caught the glance. The Frechettes didn't coax us to stay. Charlie has to get up before dawn, so that he can get to his truck-loading platform in New York on time.

We said goodnight with kisses all around and left watching Ginny and Charlie silhouetted in their doorway. There are millions of young Ginnys and Charlies all over the country - happily married with nice homes and lovely children - and I know that I must be getting old because they look so helplessly young . . .

Schayes Rebound Decides 121-119

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (UPI)-The Syracuse Nationals Sunday equaled their longest winning streak of the season when they shaded the Minneapolis Lakers. 121-119, on Dolph Schayes' rebound layup three seconds from the finish.

A snow storm, which held the crowd to a season's low of 1,322. also resulted in a late start for the second successive Sunday. Officials Sid Borgia and Bill Smith, motoring to Syracuse from Boston, were delayed by an accident en route to the game. Smith suffered a minor head injury in a seven-car pile-up but worked the

It was Syracuse's fifth straight win and eighth in a nine - game series with Minneapolis. The triumph left Syracuse just four games behind second place Philadelphia in the Eastern Division

Syracuse enjoyed a 116-106 lead with four minutes to play but the Lakers closed to 116-114 with 1:54 remaining. Schayes' free throw was countered by Frank Selvy's two foul tosses.

Tom Hawkins' basket gave the Lakers the lead with 47 seconds remaining but Schayes retaliated with a long set shot. Nineteen seconds later, Boo Ellis had two free throws but made only the second, leaving the score tied at

Syracuse Cops 5th Win In Row Over Lakers

Schayes Rebound Decides 121-119

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (UPI)-The Syracuse Nationals Sunday equaled their longest winning streak of the season when they shaded the Minneapolis Lakers, 121-119. on Dolph Schayes' rebound layup three seconds from the finish

A snow storm, which held the crowd to a season's low of 1,322, also resulted in a late start for the second successive Sunday. Officials Sid Borgia and Bill Smith, motoring to Syracuse from Boston, were delayed by an accident en route to the game. Smith suffered a minor head injury in a seven-car pile-up but worked the

It was Syracuse's fifth straight win and eighth in a nine - game series with Minneapolis. The triumph left Syracuse just four games behind second place Philadelphia in the Eastern Division

Syracuse enjoyed a 116-106 lead with four minutes to play but the Lakers closed to 116-114 with 1:54 remaining. Schayes' free throw was countered by Frank Selvy's two foul tosses.

Tom Hawkins' basket gave the Lakers the lead with 47 seconds remaining but Schayes retaliated with a long set shot. Nineteen seconds later, Boo Ellis had two free throws but made only the second, leaving the score tied at 119-all.

The Nats played for one shot, which Schayes took six seconds from the finish. He missed, but retrieved the ball to drop in an easy layup that brought Syracuse the victory.

Minneapolis failed to get a shot away in the remaining time. George Yardley led the Nat scorwith 28, had two more than the Lakers' top man, Elgin Baylor.

Sick. Why do parents get insulted when their kids are not included in every invitation? I don't blame a bride for saying "no kids" at her wedding dinner and reception. This is supposed to be her happiest day and she has the right to want it to be as nearly perfect as possible.

I've seen some of these kids who are considered "little gentions.

What do you bid now?

A.—There is no reason for undue excitement. If partner's hand is predominantly hearts, you will have nothing to cheer about Take it easy with a simple rebid of one spade. It is true that such a bid is not forcing, but if partner elects to pass, you may be quite sure that you have reached the correct final contract.

Legionnaires Distribute Plastic Hearts

Members of Fort Cumberland Post 13, American Legion, led by Paul Weisenmiller as past commander and county plastic heart chairman, were responsible for the distribution throughout Allegany and Garrett counties of about 350 plastic hearts for the collection of coin contributions to the 1960 Heart Fund drive. Albert Kerns Jr., center, vice commander of the post, is shown delivering one of the plastic hearts to Postmaster

Thomas F. Conlon Sr., who placed the heart at the parcel post window. Others in the picture are, left to right, Charles E. Griffith, district commander; Kerns, Weisenmiller and Lawrence Maphis, member of the heart committee. Paul Freeland, another member of the committee, was not present when the picture was taken. The chairman believes about $500 will be collected from the plastic hearts at the end of February.

Area Officials Push Probe Of Safecrackings

Impression Of Shoe Leads To Arrests

Criminal investigators from Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia are scheduled today to continue quizzing two local men and a 16-year-old youth in connection with a series of safecrackings and breaking and enterings in the area.

An impression left by a ribbed shoe sole at the scene of one of the breaking and enterings led to arrest of the trio by Sgt. William F. Baker and Tfc. Milton G. Hart. criminal investigators for the Maryland State Police, assisted by Pennsylvania State Police.

Authorities identified the men as James Edward Crowe, 24, and Olin Calvin Miller, 33, both of Bowmans Addition, and said the minor boy resides in the same

The lad is being detained at the LaVale Barracks, where all were questioned all day yesterday by authorities from this and neighboring states. Crowe is being held in the county jail and Miller in the city jail.

Sgt. Baker said one of the men was wearing a pair of shoes which corresponded to the ribbed impression taken at the scene of one of the depredations.

During yesterday's questioning, the group admitted breaking into a Catholic church at Laurel. Nothing was taken.

Officials are hopeful that today's questioning will help clear other cases in the area. When the preliminary questioning is completed, all will be taken to the state's attorney's office here for questioning and statement
